SPOOPENDYKE AS A SPORTSMAN.

An Exhibition of His Skill with an Improved Breech-Loader.
[From the Brooklyn Eagle.]

"Say, my dear," said Mr. Snoopendyke, as he drew a gun from the case and eyed it critically, "I want you to wake me up early in the morning; I'm going shooting."

"Isn't that too sweet!" ejaculated Mrs. Snoopendyke. "I'll wear my new dress and my Saratoga waves. Where do we go?"

"I'm going down on the island, and you'll probably go as far as the front door," grunted Mr. Snoopendyke. "Women don't go shooting. It's only men. All you've got to do is to wake me up and get breakfast. When I come home we'll have some birds."

"Won't that be nice?" chimed Mrs. Snoopendyke. "Can you catch birds with that thing?" and Mrs. Snoopendyke fluttered around the improved breech-loading shot-gun, firmly impressed with the idea that it was some kind of a trap.

"I can kill 'em with this," explained Mr. Snoopendyke. "This is a gun, my dear, it isn't a nest with three speckled eggs in it, nor a barn with a hole in the roof. You stick the cartridge in here, and pull this finger-piece, and down comes your bird every time."

"Well, isn't that the greatest thing! I suppose if you don't want a partridge, you can stick a duck or a turkey in that end, or a fish or a lobster, and bring it down just as quick?"

"Yes, or you can stick a house or a corn-field, or a dod-gasted female idiot in there, too, if you want to!" snorted Mr. Snoopendyke. "Who said anything about a partridge? It's a cartridge that goes in there!"

"Oh," ejaculated Mrs. Snoopendyke, rather crestfallen. "I see now. Where does the bird go to?"

"He goes to night-school, if he hasn't got any more sense than you have," snorted Mr. Snoopendyke. "Look here, now, and I'll show you how it works," and Mr. Snoopendyke, whose ideas of a gun were about as vague as those of his wife, inserted the cartridge half way in the muzzle end, and cautiously cocked the weapon.

"And when the bird sees that, he comes and pecks at it! Isn't that the funniest!" and Mrs. Snoopendyke clapped her hands in the enjoyment of her discovery. "Then you put out your hand and catch him!"

"You've struck it!" howled Mr. Snoopendyke, who had the hammer on the halt cock and was vainly pulling at the trigger to get it down. "That's the idea! All you need is four feathers and a gas bill to be a martingale! With your notions, you only want a new stock and a steam trip hammer to be a needle gun. Don't you think the dod-gasted thing has got to go off before you get a bird? You shoot the birds, you don't wait for them to shoot you!"

"At home, we used to always chop their heads off with an ax," faltered Mrs. Snoopendyke.

"So would I, if I was going for measly old hens," retorted Mr. Snoopendyke, "but when I go for yellow birds and sparrows I go like a sportsman. While I'm waiting for a bird," continued Mr. Snoopendyke, adjusting the cartridge at the breech, "I put the load in for safety. And when I see a flock I aim and fire."

Bang! went the gun, knocking the tail feathers out of an eight-day clock and plowing a furrow in the wall, perforating the closet door and culminating in Mr. Snoopendyke's plug hat.

"Goodness, gracious!" squeaked Mrs. Snoopendyke. "Oh, my!"

Mr. Snoopendyke gathered himself up and contemplated the damage.

"Why couldn't ye keep still?" he sneaked. "What a ye want to disturb my aim for and make me let it off? Think I can hold back a charge of powder and a pound of shot while a measly woman is scaring it through a gun-barrel?"

"If that had been a bird, how nicely you would have shot it!" suggested Mrs. Snoopendyke, smoothly. "If you should ever aim at a bird, you'd catch him, sure!"

"Oh, you know what I could do! With your information about gunnery you only need a wad in your mouth and a kick like a mule to be a mountain howitzer. If I had your intelligence on sporting subjects, I'd hire out for a shot tower! Don't you know you've spoiled the dod-gasted gun?" And Mr. Snoopendyke, anxious for some excuse to take it back to his friend Specklewottle, who loaned it to him, held it out and eyed his wife sternly. "You've ruined that gun," he continued, solemnly. "It won't ever go off again."

"Never mind, dear," consoled Mrs. Snoopendyke. "It has been off enough, and I'd just as lief have some jams as birds. You go to bed, and we'll try and do without any birds."

"It won't ever go off again," repeated Mr. Snoopendyke, as he climbed into his couch. "That is a ruined gun," and he turned his face to the wall.

Mrs. Snoopendyke slowly disrobed, having first turned a stream of water into the gun from the faucet, and betook her to rest. "It may go off again," she thought; "but, if it does, the neighbors will think the water main has burst," with which reflection she began to pat the ear of Mr. Snoopendyke, who turned over like an earthquake, and wanted to know if she thought she hadn't done enough mischief without hammering him like a dod-gasted blacksmith?

When Sargent S. Pratts was a young man teaching school in Mississippi he boarded with a wealthy cotton planter named Thomas Hall. It was upon a Saturday in the last days of October, when, resting from the fatigue of a squirrel hunt, Hall, after listening attentively to Prentiss for half an hour, turned to him and in an animated manner said: "Young man, by the eternal (Hall was a Jackson man), you were never made for a schoolmaster. You were born for a lawyer. Now listen to me. When your time is up over at the widow's do you go to N. tea z a d enter Bob Walker's office and stud. law. Bob is not the old st, cutch is the smartest of all the big bu s ab nt N debez. He'll make a lawyer if you quick, and if you haven't got the money to pay your way I have and you shall have it, and I will never ask you to pay it back." He went and read law with that distinguished man.

The capacity of the steel works of the world is estimated at about 3,000,000 tons a year. The Bessemer Works in England contribute about 800,000 tons; the United States, 750 tons more; Germany about 500,000; France about 275,000; Belgium, 150,000; Austria, 250,000, and Russian and Sweden about 150,000.

The winds were whispering low and the sentinel stars had set their watch in the sky as she leaned from her chamber window and tenderly asked: "Is that you, Henry?" "Course 'tix; pretty woman dozen know 'er own husband when sh' seezim."

He went to the back door, and there he saw his garden, the pride of his waking hours and the subject of his dreams, looking like an editor's office. He sat down on the doorstep and said, "Of all sad words of tongue or pen, the saddest are these. I keep a hen."

According to the Washington correspondent of the Cincinnati Gazette, the murder of the President nipped in the bud a plot, concocted by the wives of certain members of the cabinet, to establish a "Republican court" at the capital. It was to be both social and political in its object. The social object was to make the wives of the cabinet officers the "first ladies," and the political purpose to elevate Mr. Blaine to the Presidency.

THE District of Columbia, for the support of which the whole country is taxed, costs more each year than the annual average current expenses of the government during the first ten years of the Republic. For the fiscal year ending June 30th 1881, the expenditures on account of District amounted to $3,543,912.03. This extraordinary waste of money is attributed by Mr. H. S. Neel, of Ohio, who is chairman of the House Committee on the District of Columbia, and thoroughly acquainted with the business of the District, to the mixed up and tangled system of laws in operation there, which offer easy facilities for improper application of the public money. He recommends the enactment of a municipal code which will embody laws concerning taxation, police, building regulations and such matters, as concern cities of the size and importance of Washington. The enactment of good laws he thinks will effectually stop the great leaks and save to the treasury much money that is needlessly spent.

THE ASHLAND AFFAIR.

Mason County Guards Ordered to Catlettsburg to Protect the Murderers From Mob Violence.

The following despatch from Adjutant General J. P. Nuckols, was received last night at 10 o'clock by Capt. A. C. Respass, of the Mason County Guards:

FRANKF RT, KY., January 4, 1882.
Captain A. C. Respass, or Lieut. Dressell, commanding Mason County Guards: Special order No. 1.—Capt. A. C. The latest news from Catlettsburg is that hundreds of persons are flocking to the town and the prisoners in the jail are in imminent danger of being lynched. The most intense excitement prevails and business has been entirely suspended. It is considered highly probable that the attempt to hang the murderers will be made before the troops can arrive on the spot.

The plucky little "Free Press" of brother Morris, has retired from view for a few weeks, as we see is announced in the issue of yesterday.

We take pleasure in saying that the Howorth Hibernica troupe that lately appeared here, is one of the most entertaining that ever visited the city. The entire troupe, without exception, are good in their respective specialties. Miss Sadie McGill especially, was repeatedly encored and was most enthusiastically received at all the three entertainments. The lecture by Mr. Wm. McGill was both entertaining and instructive. We cheerfully commend the company to public favor.

The James Brothers Reported to be at Mt. Olivet.

A report comes from Mt. Olivet, that Jessie James and one of his brothers are in that neighborhood and have been for more than a week past. Two gentlemen who left Mt. Olivet yesterday, are the authority for the statement that they are seen on the streets of that place almost every day and that none of the residents of the town seem to doubt their identity. They are described as handsome men of gentlemanly bearing who favorably impress all who meet them. Whether they are the veritable James brothers or not many persons certainly believe them to be those persons.

The marshal, deputy marshals, clerk, collector and treasurer, wood and coal inspector, marketmaster and keeper of alms house will be elected at the council meeting to-night.

The hot air drum on a stove in the bar-room of Jno. Sherburne, Aberdeen, exploded Wednesday evening, and parts of it were driven through the ceiling of the room. Fortunately no one was injured.

The Glass Eye.

A young man with a glass eye was engaged to be married, but he did not like to inform his betrothed of his ocular defect. A week previous to the day named for the wedding he confided in his future father-in-law, who, to his surprise, received the information in a highly-amused manner. "I'll make it all right for you, my boy; you imitate me exactly in anything I do after supper to-night, and see how good-naturedly Maria (that was the lady's name) will take it." Accordingly, as soon as the evening meal was concluded, the father looked at the young man and began to sing:

Oh, do you know the glass-eye man,
The glass-eye man, the glass-eye man?
Oh, do you know the glass-eye man
Who lives down our way?

And, as he concluded the last line, he took out his left eye and placed it on a plate in front of him. The young man was very much astonished to find his Maria's father as unfortunate as himself, while at the same time it gave him courage to reply:

Oh, yes, I know the glass-eye man
Who lives down our way,

and to deposit his crystal optic on the table. Maria was convulsed with laughter at the proceedings, but her future husband was ready to believe all humanity one-eyed when she trebled forth:

I also know the glass-eye man
Who lives down our way,

and dropped her eye into a glass of water by her side.

Frequent assaults and battery have been made by sternly virtuous females in cars on glass-eyed men. Only recently a gentleman was enjoying the scenery through the car window with his natural eye, unaware of the fact that his glass eye was staring straight ahead at a maiden lady of Sunday-school principles. She put up with it for half an hour, and then got up and, smashing his hat over his head, called him a licentious villain and other complimentary epithets, and was only prevented from scratching his face by his timely retreat to the smoking car, under the supposition that he had been attacked by a mad woman.

Fifty years ago, when California was under the dominion of Spain, a one-eyed commandant ruled at San Francisco, who was the terror of all the Indians in the vicinity. A Yankee skipper traveling that way induced the Spaniard to purchase one of the then-newly-invented glass eyes of him, and, to the fear and surprise of the red-skins, the commandant suddenly appeared with two eyes. This was too much for the braves, so one of their number was deputed to assassinate the senior. He managed to gain access to his chamber, but, on approaching the couch, was terrified to find the commandant sleeping with one eye closed and the other wide open. The amazed Indian gave an unearthly yell and threw himself headlong from the window.

One of the most curious stories is the case of a supposed blind beggar in Paris. This man was arrested for some trivial offense, and, on his way to prison, one of his eyes fell out on the sidewalk. On being examined it was discovered that for a long time he had been in the habit of wearing two ingeniously-concocted porcelain covers to his real eyes, which were of a different color to the sham ones, and he was at once recognized as a criminal for whom the authorities had long been in search.

A glass eye once figured in a civil trial. An optician sued a woman for the value of an eye he had inserted for her with the promise that she would find it both ornamental and useful. The woman declined to pay, her defense in court being as follows:

"I have false teeth; I can eat with them. I have false hair; it keeps my head warm and is ornamental. I have also a false leg; I can walk with it. But—taking her glass eye out and dashing it to the ground—I can neither see with my false eye nor is it an object of beauty." She gained her suit.—Philadelphia Press.

THERE are five cities in the world having each a population of over 1,000,000 inhabitants—one each in Britain, United States, Germany, France and Austria. Then there are nine having more than 500,000 inhabitants—three in Great Britain, three in the United States, two in Russia and one in Turkey.
